

Military-Connected FAQs for Admissions Offices

The list below provides you with a guide on the types of questions you should be asking the admission's office at institutions you may be interested in attending. This list is NOT all inclusive, but should provide you with some basic information to start compiling information to find the best school to meet your needs.

1. Is your institution accredited? What accreditations do you have for the program I'm interested in?
2. What is the job placement rate for graduates from this degree program at your institution?
3. What is the cost to attend your school?
4. Will my application be given any special consideration because I'm a veteran?
5. Are there special steps I can take to "tell my story" and improve my chances of acceptance to the university?
6. Do you accept "military transfer credit"? What are the policies and procedures for that process? Who handles this?
7. Do you participate in the Yellow Ribbon program? If so, what number of GI Bill recipients are eligible? Who is considered for this funding? What will be my financial responsibilities after the Yellow Ribbon funds have been applied?
8. If I have transfer credits from another university, how will those be reviewed and what will be applied to the degree requirements for graduation? Does this affect my remaining benefits? Who do I talk to about this?
9. If I check a box on my admissions application that I'm a veteran or service member, who will get this information? Are there any future implications of providing this information to you? I want to determine who knows this information so my privacy is protected.
10. What is the benefit of completing the FASFA application?
11. Once I get admitted to the university, what is my next step in ensuring my benefits are received? Who should I contact? Will they contact me? What information should I have available?
